«Teignmouth, Devon, (Eng.)» The writer acknowledges the receipt of "30 stamps" and will order some copies of "the little Hymn Book." Asks about Frederick Douglass and wishes that the Abolitionists wouldn't quarrel over details. Says she knows Julia Griffiths. Speaks of Mrs. Edmund Sturge's "cat-like quaker-velvet tongue," and her complaint that the Boston Abolitionists won't help Douglass's Rochester Bazaar. The writer complains that Garrison's collected works were "very scanty of facts." "I fell in love on hearsay with Mrs. Chapman though I laugh at her 'Women's Rights Women' companions-in-arms." discusses the prospects for peace in Europe. Asks if she can't "do something positive about the Anti-Slavery, peace

«Worcester (Mass.)» Concerns contributions desired for the Liberty Bell. "But my poetry, as you rashly call it, has all turned into prose for the last few years; a good exchange for all, I think." However, the writer encloses verses found "among the scattered waifs of the past." Also sends a sermon on the text "Am I my Brother's Keeper." Further the writer suggests applying for contributions to his friend W.H.Hurlbut of Cambridge and the Rev. David A.Wasson of Groveland, "one of the noblest persons whom I know..."

«Kingsdown, Bristol (England)» The writer dwells on British ignorance of slavery in the United States. People are too engrossed in domestic issues to study the situation in America, also American political party names are especially puzzling to English people. In England many believe that one can do more good by remaining in an organization than by leaving it. The Honorable Baptist Noel's "leaving the Church to unite with the Baptists" is seen in this light. W. Thomson speaks of Albert Barnes "as doing more good by protesting against slavery in his denomination" than he would do by leaving it. The writer refers to the "dear friend[illegible] Park St." (the Estlins) and explains the prejudice of s[illegible]ople against working with Unitarians. However, they hav[illegible] united committe. All are anxious for the success of the Anti-Slavery Advocate. The writer is glad to hear of the safe arrival of Caroline Weston

To [Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman?]

[?] They missed the addressee, as well as Miss Weston and Miss Chapman, at Madame Belloc's Sunday. They are so absorbed in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" that they hardly allow themselves time to eat. Today Mme Belloc and the writer had planned to spend the evening with the addressee, but they are going to work till midnight or one o'clock, being under pressure to return the copy. The writer will please excuse them in consideration of the cause that detains them, and it would be most kind and gracious of her to compensate them for their loss tomorrow. There are plenty of difficulties [in the reading of Uncle Tom's Cabin] which t[illegible]riter would rather overcome than avoid. She copies a nu[illegible]of phrases from the book with the puzzling words underscored, and thanks the addressee for enlightening her. This book, which has rent her soul,

To Whom?

«Dublin?, (Ireland)» This item may be part of the Apr.20 letter on this number. The writer believes L. A. Chamerovzow to be "a thoroughly honest man," and sincerely interested in promoting the Anti-Slavery cause. Discusses the faults of the Committee (of the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society). Says that the Estlins are prejudiced against the Quakers. "I understand from Sarah Pugh that you don't approve of Mathews's articles about the sects, on the ground that they convey a false impression." "I think they do ..."

«Park St., (Bristol)» The writer says she is never well in damp weather, and that she has only just recovered from an illness caused by it. Says that Sarah Pugh "does good work wherever she is." Is now staying with the Luptons in Leeds. "Never was there such an A.S. ferment over the land." Thinks W. Phillips could defeat "the machinations of the pro-Slavery clergy." The Quakers "no longer circumscribe the bounds of anti-slavery activity." Two of the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society officers are favorably inclined toward the Garrisonians. (F. W.) Chesson has applied for the the Bristol Society's report. The writer [illegible]ged Mrs. E. Michell to accept addressee's invitation to c[illegible]o America. H. To "My dear friend" No.7

«Florence, (Italy)» The writer discusses the art of letter-writing. Tells about his travels through Italy. He is learning Italian, but can't read Dante yet. Quotes an Italian sonnet. Tells of meeting a Mr. Morrison of London, a rich man strongly in favor of reform. Morrison told him a story about James Fenimore Cooper. Believes that Paris society is the only society in Europe worthy of the name. "I had a conversation with Powers the artist the other day & he expressed himself in a most manly manner regarding the wholesale brigand Napoleon." The writer hates "every species of oppression." Objects strongly to the employment of a Rev. Foster. "I had great pleasure in reading b[illegible]uincy's & Phillips' articles ..." Liked Quincy's articl[illegible]st. Met Baron Julius Jakob

Von Haynau. "Nearly all Italian works of art ... have the effect to perpetuate bigotry & ignorance and consequently despotism ..." Heard that the addressee was going to give a ball in Weymouth. "Quincy I know dances well." Suggests that the addressee take a trip through Europe. Was sorry to hear that Garrison "was still a believer in spiritual manifestations ..." His partner, Mr. Endicott, wrote him that all the business houses in Boston were closed on account of D. Webster's death. The writer disapproved strongly of this action.

To "Dear Miss Weston"

«Leicester, (Mass.)» The writer discusses arrangements for sending a box of reports to England. Reports on the terms of the employment of J. J. Locke. Speaks favorably of another lecturer named (A. J.?) Grover. Heard that the Leominster Abolitionists resented not having their contributions to the Anti-Slavery Bazaar acknowledged in the Report. Considers the omission accidental. The small gift of a Mrs. Rockwood of Leicester should also be mentioned. Received a letter from J. B. Estlin containing contributions. Wants an inquiry of R. D. Webb concerning Bancroft's United States answered. "I hope to hear a favorable [illegible]rt of Lucia 's health soon."

«Boston» The writer announces the shipment of the annual box of reports, pamphlets, etc. Complains that quite a number of copies of the Anti-Slavery Advocate have not been received. Discusses means of paying for the subscriptions. Asked Garrison to write to Frederick William Chesson. Says that Harriet Beecher Stowe's Key to Uncle Tom's Cabin will be published soon. Asks for 50 copies of the Poetical Instructor-Part 2. Reports the duties paid on the boxes of contributions. Gives total receipts from the Bazaars for a period of years. Regards the Advocate as very useful to the Abolition cause. The Nat. A-S Standa[illegible]ill be changed in form. The annual meeting of the Amer[illegible]A-S Society may be in Brooklyn, but if not, then in Syracus[illegible] Mentions an English missionary named William Scott Downey.

«Salem, (Mass.)» The writer wants to know what the addressee's sisters think of Louis Napoleon. Her own sister went on a visit to Georgetown, D.C. Marvels at the patient and skilful work required to run an Anti-Slavery Bazaar. "I was surprised that you did not ascribe more direct results,-'material aid,'-to the influence of Uncle Tom's Cabin." Admitted that the book "had no effect on my purse strings." Does not think much about Slavery, "except when the matter is ... especially brought up." A friend of hers thinks that the whites are more enslaved by the blacks than the blacks are by the whites. "I like the Colonization sc[illegible] very well." Asks the writer's opinion of Episcopacy. To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman.

Oxford Terrace. The writer tells what is on her mind in regard to a school for colored pupils planned by Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe. Agrees with the addressee, but considers that "this is Mrs. Stowe's affair" and that she will probably have her own way in any case. The writer is in favor of the school plan and believes that the education of free colored people is a step toward their freedom. Believes the addressee not "quite moonstruck enough" to believe that she can induce Mrs. Stowe to deliver the money raised by her friends "for her to use as she thinks best" into the hands of the American Anti-Slavery Society. Suggests ad[illegible]g Mrs. Stowe to place the money in the hands of trustee[illegible] be used for the education of colored men or women in any school or college in America

‹Boston› The writer discusses shipments, import duties, subscriptions, deliveries of the Anti-Slavery Advocate, etc. Reports on the amount of the proceeds of the A-S Fair. Says that Garrison attempted to convert Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe to his view of Abolition. Warned her against a group of his Glasgow opponents. The writer reports briefly the contents of a letter Mrs. Stowe wrote to Garrison. Says Oliver Johnson will resume the editorship of the Nat. A-S Standard. Garrison is moving to another home. Mrs. Stowe wants to found a colored normal school with the money earned by Uncle Tom's Cabin.

«Dublin, (Ireland)» The writer says that the Anti-Slavery Advocate is ready to go to press; her husband is visiting a sick friend; the "Boston Box" (of contributions for the Anti-Slavery Bazaar) will be sent late; and W. Phillips's Address has been published as "an Appendix to the Annual Report." R. D. Webb wrote for some copies of Slavery As It Is, but failed to obtain them. "Mrs. Stowe's Key «to Uncle Tom's Cabin» will probably take its place." Writer is worried as to how Mrs. Stowe will act "when amongst the bigotted & exclusive folk in Edinburgh." The Glasgow Abolitionists are going to publish The Friend of the Fugitive. Refers briefly to S. Pugh. Mentions her daughters' sc[illegible] careers.

«Dublin, (Ireland)» The writer defends his letter in the National Anti-Slavery Standard in which he took the side of those who criticised the Address of Lord Shaftesbury. Condemns J. Scoble for being a tool of bigotry. "Scoble was in my opinion actively mischievous & his employer passively so." Does not, nevertheless, expect much from L. A. Chamerovzow. "Joseph Sturge & Co. are too old to change greatly for the better."

Says that he, his wife and his sister-in-law are the only Irish Abolitionists who appreciate the Garrisonians. Thinks that the opponents of Garrison are just narrow in their beliefs, not wicked. Says he [illegible]s not know G. W. Alexander and has "not conversed half an [illegible] together in my life with Joseph Sturge." Opposes Chame[illegible]ow's idea of another World Convention. P. To "Chère dame & amie". Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman?.

.(Paris?). The writer had hoped to press the hand of the addressee before leaving. Alludes to a promise of the addressee that she, together with the Misses Weston and Miss Chapman, would spend a day at la Celle St.Cloud. The writer hopes to be notified by the addressee of the arrival of her "noble and admirable friend." M. Gustave d'Eichthal, Secretary of the Ethnological Society of Paris, who met Mrs. (Harriet Beecher) Stowe when he gave a report there on the negro race, has charged the writer to forward a letter and a pamphlet to Mrs. Stowe; the transmission of these the writer entrusts to the addressee.

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

«Dublin, (Ireland)» The writer tells about his son's embarkation on a ship bound for Australia. Alfred Webb was going on the voyage for his health. Mentions Garrison's voyage to England in 1840 and his cool reception by the Gurneys, etc. The writer tells how he came to meet Harriet Martineau. Talks at length about the Australian voyage and Alfred's fellow-passengers, consignment of merchandise for sale and the arrangements for paying for his passage. Discusses the relations of Joseph Sturge with the American Anti-Slavery Society. Says that the English public thinks well of Sturge's Abolitionism. Likes L. A. Chamerovzow, who is having trouble winning over the Committee of the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society to an alliance with the American Abolitionists.

To Mary A. Estlin No.47

«Dublin, (Ireland)» The writer thinks that Mrs. M. W. Chapman exaggerated the "active hostility" of the Committee of the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society. He blames J. Scoble, the former Secretary, for the "active mischief" done by the Committee. Says that the Anti-Slavery Reporter shows L. A. Chamerovzow's influence. Is well satisfied with Mrs. M. W. Chapman's account of Mrs. H. B. Stowe. Says that Mrs. Chapman is "a keen judge of character and generally leans to the stern side in her estimates of character." Calls Mrs. Stowe "a type of «the» back number in the United States who are hardly touched by the turmoil of the Abolition warfare." Discusses Anti-Slavery fair advertisements for the Anti-Slavery Advocate. Does not want to advertise "that factious(?) fair got up by Julia Griffith[illegible]for Douglass." It is hard for him to get news items for th[illegible]ocate.

Dublin, (Ireland). The writer discusses his arrangements with W. Armistead for the printing of Garrison's speech on the principles of the American Anti-Slavery Society. Says Mr. Furness is a real Abolitionist. The writer discusses his plans for supplying added copies of the Anti-Slavery Advocate. "Mr. Bishop's letter to Mr. Bright is so easy and so forcible that I long for it for the Advocate." Criticises the Leeds Committee for wanting to hear both sides of the Anti-Slavery question. Claims that the Abolitionist papers present all the arguments pro and con. Discusses the layout of the Advocate. "I greatly like [illegible] idea of the Leeds Anti-Slavery Library. W. Armistead sen[illegible] a catalogue." "Deborah's Friend, the Silent Girl fr[illegible]lifax, is still with us."

⌞Philadelphia⌟ The writer replies to an inquiry about the raising of money "to carry out the plan ... in reference to G. Thompson," by saying that, in the absence of J. M. McKim, it is very hard to keep his organization in proper working order. Does not think it would be advisable to invite G. Thompson to the United States. The writer quotes from a letter he wrote to McKim to the effect that he disapproves of Thompson coming here and making a living by Anti-Slavery lecturing.

To Messrs. Samuel May Jr., Francis Jackson, Robert Folger Wallcutt and the managers of the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society.

«New York(City)» The writer claims that the Mass. A-S Soc'y. made no attempt to prove its assertions that his book contained false statements. Says he did not write as a partisan. Declares that most of the "Anti-Slavery labor of the country (political, ecclesiastical and moral) has been conducted outside of either of these National Societies..." Explains his relationship to William Harned. A member of the American & Foreign A-S Soc'y thinks the writer's book is unfair to his organization, and another member characterizes certain passages as "rank Garrisonism

«Battle Creek (Mich.)» Spent day at Thomas Chandler's, brother of Elizabeth Chandler. Passed hour at Elizabeth's grave, pencilled sonnet on post of railing around it. Details journey from Adrian, describes country and towns. Very dry season, weather clear. Was met at Battle Creek by Richard Merritt, stayed at his father's house. Numerous anti-slavery lecturers have left little impression here on account of bigotry. G. spoke in Friends' meeting-house. Will speak tomorrow in Detroit. Much excitement caused there by S.S. and Abby Kelly Foster. Compares Detroit Free Soil paper to Bennett's Herald. Expects to be slandered and assailed.

«Dublin, (Ireland)» The writer regrets that the last issue of the Anti-Slavery Advocate contained so few interesting items. "I send you the last Stan«dard» lest you may not have seen its comments on the October Advocate." Discusses the attitude of the editors of the National Anti-Slavery Standard. Heard that his son Alfred had reached Melbourne, Australia, after a trip of "one week less than 100 days."

Imagines the pleasure with which Anne will look upon the daguerreotype of Mr. [John Bishop] Estlin, which cannot, however, give "the benevolent play of his countenance." Dwells at length on the state of the Estlins' health. Mr. Estlin's lack of strength in his right hand appears to be the only trace left of his attack, and his vigor for long walks remains unimpaired. Mary [Estlin] has been overworked and will try the water cure near Birmingham. Refers to (evidently another) daguerreotype of Mary Estlin and her father, w[illegible] they consider a failure in regard to Mr. Estlin, the co[illegible], being so high "that it gives one the idea of his not belonging to anything in the

The latter had written to American Abolitionists for information, and "there seems now to be an opening for awakening a more estensive interest." Though ‹Frederick› Douglass "has been their hero," Mr. Steinthal, who had seen only Douglass's own paper ‹the North Star› "gathered from it what Douglass really is-with regard to his late attack on [illegible] real Abolitionists." To Miss Weston «Caroline Weston?»

«Upper Clapton, London» Writes at length about contributors and contributions to the box for the Bazaar, mentioning especially the valuable engravings of Mr. Thomas Agnew. Requests that publicity in newspapers be given these engravings. Dr. Massie's "Crime & Curse of America" should be given out gratis rather than sold. The writer does not like Lord Brougham's exculpation of American slavery for the reason that England forced it on America. "Were it not for the unconquerable repugnance the English have to work with men who seem to glory in their infidelity, yr society wd carry all before it in this country." [illegible]orates on this theme.

.Park St., Bristol, (England). The writer sends a letter from a prospective Abolitionist to the addressee for an answer. The prospective Abolitionist "is R. L. Carpenter's successor at Bridgewater, & has got up a working ASS in the place over which his predecessor shed a wet blanket." G. Thompson made "admiring references to the labors of Joseph Sturge" at a meeting in Manchester. "Some of our friends in Scotland have doubted the policy of our becoming auxiliary to the B. & F. A.S.S., but rely upon it. There is true wisdom in it." Will prepare an address to the American Anti-Slavery Society from the Manchester Anti-Slavery Union. The Anti-Slavery Watchman "has a goo[illegible]ice of Mr. Thompson's intended movements & the meetings alr[illegible] held. Professor Allen is

.Bridgewater, (England). The writer does not quite understand the effect on Slavery of Clause V of the U.S. Constitution. A pamphlet entitled Extracts from the Proceedings of Convention "from Mr. Maddison's papers," seemed clearly to prove to the writer that Gov. MacDuffie's statement that Slavery is the cornerstone of the Union, was right. The writer has been studying the early history of the Anti-Slavery movement. Praises the courage of the addressee and her Anti-Slavery friends. Received the Pennsylvania Freeman and is glad to note that W. Phillips and E. Quincy understand the difference between European and Americ[illegible]ranny. Thinks that the slaves are worse off than the Poles [illegible] the Hungarians. Doubts that Joseph Barker ever understood "the evils of European politics".

The writer's society will not merge with the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society. Thinks that Joseph Sturge is "making up with George Thompson." The London Times is gradually coming around to the right view of Slavery. The writer discusses internal dissension among the Abolitionists, mentioning particularly the case of F. Douglass. Mrs. H. B. Stowe's letter to the Glasgow Abolitionists mentioned the Temperance cause. Blames the English churches for not preaching strongly against drunkenness. Holds it to be inconsistent to attack slavery in the U. S. and overlook intemperance in England. Holds Mazzini to be more co[illegible]nt in his actions than Kossuth. Says that the Anti-S[illegible]y movement brings together people of all religious denominations. "Have you seen Miss Bremer's book on America? She is wonderfully cool on the
